THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 25.

Condition of the South. With the undoubted causes for irritation and excitement which exist in the unreconstructed States it is a marvel how the Southern people keep so quiet and peaceable. Born with a love of freedom at once deep and ineradicable, and inheriting a repugnance to military oppression which the war of the Revolution developed and nurtured, we have seen them sitting quietly down for the past three years and peaceably submitting to the yoke of the conqueror. Gov-ernment changes their military dictators with all the facility of a prestidigitatour, simply a "Hi. presto!" being all that is required to displace a Sheridan and install a Hancock; it mashes down a Sickles and up springs a Canby; it upsets a Pope and out pops a Meads, and the people, save a few sputterings in some of the newspapers, are scarcely heard to murmur. Their civil officers are removed as easy as a Bergen farmer would cut down his drumheads in the fall. The military regulators change at pleasure all local officers - the mayors, sheriffs, aldermen, judges, and even the juries, peppering the boxes of the latter occasionally with a sprinkling of blacks, thus savoring justice with a spice that must be extremely agreeable to any good white man's taste. In short the military authority in the South is absolute, penetrating to social as well as public life and every branch of society. Yet there is no trouble. The Southern people do not complain loudly. They are the most obedient people in the world, and there is no more peaceable country on the face of the globe than the South. Still, these people are called rebels and ex-rebels, and the Radicals hold them up as monsters upsuitable for political consideration and even unfit for Christian burial. They even dispute their right to bestrew the graves of their fallen war-riors with the garlands of remembrance and love. But any one who visits the South at this time and examines for himself will find that these who fought the fiercest in fair fight against each other from the North and from the South-are now the warmest friends, and all business enterprises undertaken in an honest and trustworthy spirit by Northern "boys in blue' arevordially welcomed and encouraged by Southern "boys in gray." It is the misera-ble, whining, hypocritical "carpet bagger" who creeps into the South, like a thief at midnight into a dwelling, steals all he can lay his hands on, poisons the mind of a credulous people, and then crawls away, leaving the trail of his pestiferous presence to mark the path he has taken, who is now working the greatest evil to the Southern country. It is time the incubus was raised from that fair land and her people allowed again to enjoy that liberty which their Revolutionary fathers fought to attain. and which has been chastened and refined and rendered more appreciable by the terrible or deal they have recently passed through. -N.
